Dear Members,

Workshop: Building a Structured Roadmap on Supply Chain Due Diligence

In today's interconnected global economy, building a structured supply chain diligence roadmap is no longer a voluntary "nice-to-have" corporate milestone—it is a critical business survival mechanism.

The geopolitical tensions, trade wars, extreme climate events and mandatory supply chain disclosure have shifted companies away from the traditional reactive "firefighting" approach on supply chain incidents to a proactive risk-based approach for keeping operations running and fulfilling stakeholder's expectation. A clear due diligence framework also protects corporate reputation by identifying supply chain issues early and demonstrating to the stakeholders that the company is actively taking accountability.

This workshop is designed to empower procurement and supply chain professionals with the knowledge and practical tools to build their due diligence system into their operations.

Course Outline
1. Concepts of Supply Chain Due Diligence
2. Why due diligence matters?
3. Building a structural system and process for supply chain due diligence
4. Strategies for responding to risks
5. Case study analysis and interactive group discussion
